NAMED CHAIRMAN EMERITUS AS SON HOWARD TAKES OVER THE POSITION

Buffett retires as Berkshire chairman

MANYA SAINI & JONATHAN STEMPEL
September 18

BERKSHIRE HATHAWAY SAID on Friday that Warren Buffett will step down as chairman and become chairman emeritus, effective immediately, nine months after handing the CEO reins to longtime lieutenant Greg Abel.

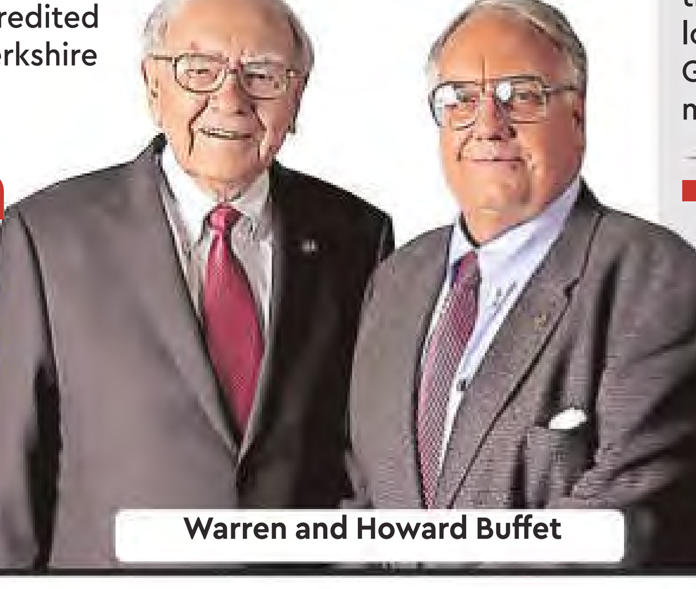
The company named his son, Howard Buffett, a director since 1993, as chairman.

Warren Buffett is credited with transforming Berkshire from a failing textile company into a $1.1 trillion conglomerate while building an investment philosophy that influenced generations of investors and executives, making him one of the most consequential figures in modern corporate America.

Berkshire's Class B shares were last down 0.3% in premarket trading. Buffett's reputation has also been reflected in the company's valuation, with investors for years ascribing a 'Buffett premium' to its shares.

PASSING THE BATON

- Warren Buffett is credited with transforming Berkshire from a failing textile company into a $1.1 trn conglomerate
- His investment philosophy had influenced generations of investors and executives
- He handed over the CEO reins to longtime lieutenant Greg Abel nine months ago
- His son Howard Buffett has been a director since 1993 at Berkshire and his main responsibility would be to preserve the firm's culture



Warren and Howard Buffet

The conglomerate's price-to-book value has fallen since Buffett announced he would step down as CEO, slipping from around 1.62 to 1.53, according to data compiled by LSEG.

Berkshire remains the only financial firm in the trillion-dollar market-value club dominated by technology giants.

"It was always a matter of when, not if Buffett has made a graceful exit," said Brian Jacobsen, chief economic strategist at Annex Wealth Management.

"Berkshire has had years to prepare for this transition, so this feels more like the completion of a carefully planned succession than a sudden changing of the guard." Buffett's influence has extended far beyond Berkshire, shaping generations of corporate leaders and investors with his emphasis on long-term thinking, disciplined capital allocation and straightforward management.

"The culture Warren built and the values he championed will remain at the heart of Berkshire, and Howard will be their guardian," Abel said in a statement on Friday.

CEOs have looked to Buffett as a sounding board on everything from acquisitions and succession to navigating periods of market turmoil, while his annual shareholder meetings became a gathering point for investors.

"As Chairman Emeritus, Mr. Buffett will remain a member of the Board of Directors and will continue to offer his valued judgment and perspective," Berkshire said in a statement.

Unlike his father, Howard Buffett, known as Howie, would not have a management role as chairman, and his main responsibility would be to preserve Berkshire's culture.

That culture includes letting Berkshire's operating businesses handle their day-to-day affairs without interference from upper management, though Abel is widely seen as more keen than Warren Buffett to address performance shortfalls. Abel has direct oversight of several Berkshire business lines, while Vice Chairman Ajit Jain oversees insurance and newly installed President Adam Johnson oversees consumer, services & retail subsidiaries. — REUTERS

Marathi film Gondhal India's pick for Oscars

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Mumbai, September 18

MARATHI FILM GONDHAL has been chosen as India's official entry to the Oscars 2027, the Film Federation of India announced on Friday.

Written and directed by Santosh Davakhar, the film is set in rural Maharashtra and plays out over a night of a traditional ritual centred around a newly-wed couple.

The film was chosen as India's submission for Best International Feature category for the 99th Academy Awards from a list of 33 films, said P Sheshadri, chairperson of the selection committee.

"This year we've had four Marathi films, 14 Hindi films, and others films, all the films were good. It's a happy moment for Indian cinema, for Marathi cinema. This time the official entry is Gondhal," Sheshadri said at a press conference here.

BEST AMONG 33

- Gondhal was chosen as India's submission for Best International Feature category from 33 films
- It follows Suman, a woman trapped in an oppressive marriage, who plots a murder

"We've watched 33 films in last ten days of different languages. There were many other good films for which we were debating about. Angh and Ikkis were in top three list apart from Gondhal," he added.

Gondhal had its world premiere at the 56th International Film Festival of India (IFFI) in Goa in 2025 in the Indian Panorama segment. Davakhar won the Silver Peacock for Best Director at the festival.

Set against the midnight carnival of the ritualistic Gondhal dance in rural Maharashtra, the movie follows Suman, a woman trapped in an oppressive marriage, who plots a murder and an escape with her forbidden lover, blurring the lines between devotion, deception and fate.

Asian Games kitchen: Method amid madness

MIHIR VASAVDA
Nagoya (Japan), September 18

SIXTY THOUSAND BANANAS. A tonne of rice. Two tonne of chicken. Up to 35,000 pieces of bread and 30 kg of almonds. A total of 450 menu items. Every single day.

For Peter Wright, the founder of Global Hospitality Group, feeding an Asian Games is less about putting food on a plate than running a small international food system. It begins before dawn, caters to athletes from across the continent and keeps serving until 1am.

"It's slow madness at the start," Wright says. "By the end, it's damn crazy."

Around 17,000 athletes and officials from 45 countries are taking part in the Aichi-Nagoya Asian Games. Wright and his team have 80 chefs from 25 countries working in the kitchen, with around 200 staff involved in the operation. The menu changes four times a day: Breakfast, lunch, dinner and supper, with the first food going out at 5am.

20TH ASIAN GAMES
AICHI-NAGOYA 2026

The scale is enormous, but the philosophy is simple: Make a 17-year-old athlete feel at home. "I'm a young athlete, pretend. It's my first trip overseas," says Wright. "I'm going to Japan... But when I get here, all that I've eaten in the past is things from my village or my community or what my coach tells me to eat, what my mother cooks for me. So I'm looking for something to be familiar with."

That means the Japanese soy sauce does not translate into a dining hall dominated by sushi and sashimi. There are Chinese, Korean, Thai, Malaysian, Middle Eastern and Indian offerings, including rogan josh, dal, curries, chutneys, naan and biryani. The vastness of the Asian Games means there are also different religious sensitivities to negotiate.

Even soy sauce is not quite as simple as it sounds.

"The Korean chef wants Korean soy sauce, the Japanese chef Japanese soy sauce and the Chinese chef Chinese soy sauce," says Wright, who has spent more than 40 years in hospitality and worked on catering at the Sydney, Beijing and Rio Olympics, the Vancouver Winter Olympics and two Commonwealth Games.

The same goes for biryani. Wright learnt that lesson in 1992, when Pakistan played England in the World Cup final at the Melbourne Cricket Ground. The Pakistan team manager asked for biryani as a match-day meal. "He asked me, 'Do you know what it is?' I replied, 'Yeah, yeah, I know what it is, no problem'. Because I'm a young chef with a big ego. I never heard of biryani in my life."

There was no internet to rescue him, so Wright turned to an Indian member of his kitchen staff, whose mother came to the MCG and taught the chefs how to make the dish. They served it to the Pakistan team.

Later, Wright asked the manager how it was. "He said, 'Oh, it was okay. It wasn't Pakistani biryani, it was Indian biryani'. I went, 'What are you talking about? It's the same thing'. And he said, 'no, it's not the same thing'."

It was an important lesson. "I didn't know there was a difference, but I learned something — authenticity," Wright says.
