The sad tale of Pakistan: In trying to be too clever by half, hoisted by its own petard as Iran war escalates

One feels bad for Shehbaz Sharif. Saddled with responsibility sans power, he tries his best. Yet life (read Asim Munir) is dead the Pakistani prime minister such a rotten hand that even his best efforts fall short.

Take the current crisis. With the US and Israel assassinating Iran's Supreme Leader and top generals in a joint operation, Pakistan is caught between the devil and the deep sea. There is a touch of black comedy in the way Sharif is trying to execute the impossible trapeze act.

On one hand Pakistan needs to show total compliance and obedience to the United States, or Daddy Trump will shut off the IMF tap, Pakistan will default and its struggling economy will go up in flames. Pakistani stock market has already crashed, and trading had to be stopped for a while. On the other hand, a restive, radicalized population that considers America as the 'Great Satan', is incensed at the killing of Ayatollah Khamenei at the hands of American and Israeli forces and has decided to take law in their own hands. The crisis has demonstrated that Pakistan's foreign policy, long incumbent on rent-seeking from competing great powers, has reached its logical conclusion. Islamabad is no longer able to insulate its population from the consequences of its strategic imperatives. In the last few days, Pakistan has been rocked by violence with demonstrators protesting the assassination of Khamenei. The death toll has already reached 35. In Sunni-dominated Pakistan, around 15% are Shiites, followers of the Shia sect of Islam. Pakistan is home to the third-largest Shia community in the world after Iran and Iraq. Pakistan is also the only country, as a 2015 Pew Research survey indicated, where Iran is viewed favourably by the majority. Little wonder that soon after the news spread of attacks against Iran and death of Khamenei, violent protesters in Karachi tried to raid the US embassy and at least 10 were killed when the US marines opened fire at the rioters. Imagine Pakistan's moth-eaten sovereignty where foreign security officers at a consulate kill citizens of the host country at will. Nearly 25 more were injured in Karachi alone. The fire soon spread to other parts. Bloomberg reports that in Pakistan's northern regions of Gilgit and Skardu, at least 14 protesters and one soldier was killed. There were similar demonstrations near the consulate in Lahore and near the US embassy in Islamabad. The situation became so grim that Pakistan had to call in its troops and impose a three-day curfew in the Gilgit-Baltistan region. For Pakistan, a nation adept at navigating the treacherous waters of competing alliances, the current crisis at home represents the failure of its 'strategic hedging'. It is now caught between its existential dependency on the US for sustenance and an Islamist population erupting in sectarian fury. By attempting to play too sophisticated a game, Pakistan has effectively been hoisted by its own petard. Notably, Sharif did not

The Disney Adventure Arrives in Singapore

Excitement and pride filled the electric atmosphere as the ship approached the Marina Bay Cruise Centre Singapore with a stunning water salute, this evening. The skies lit up with a dazzling array of fireworks to welcome the Disney Adventure, marking the start of an extraordinary new chapter in cruise vacation experiences for guests in the region. Melissa Ow, Chief Executive, Singapore Tourism Board said, "Disney Cruise initially condemn the attack on Iran by the US and Israel that took out Khamenei - a marked abstinence given the way Pakistan fashions itself as the 'protector' of the Islamic world.

Turkish Airlines Becomes Launch Partner of Google

Ahmedabad, Turkish Airlines, the airline flying to more countries than any other, has entered into a collaboration with Google, marking yet another milestone in its digital transformation journey aimed at enhancing the travel experience for its guests. As a launch partner of Google's new Find Hub "share item location" feature, Turkish Airlines now accepts Find Hub-generated location links as part of its official baggage recovery process, enabling faster and more efficient resolution for guests with misplaced or delayed luggage. Through this collaboration, passengers traveling with a Find Hub-compatible tracker tag or network accessory attached to their baggage can generate a secure, location link directly from the Find Hub app and share it with a Turkish

Airlines baggage representative, giving the airline's teams the precise information they need to locate and return bags with greater speed. Passengers simply open the Find Hub app, select their missing item and tap "share item location" to generate a unique, secure URL. This link can then be provided to a Turkish Airlines representative, who will be able to view the item's location as it updates. Passengers remain in full control throughout: sharing can be stopped at any moment from within the app, links automatically expire after seven days, and sharing is disabled automatically once the item is detected back with its owner. All location data is encrypted, ensuring that passenger privacy is protected at every step. (20-4)
