CRUDE SHOCK

IEA URGES RELEASE; GOVERNMENTS SAY SUPPLIES STABLE FOR NOW

G7 hold off on oil stock release as prices rise

Smoke rises following a strike on the Bapco oil refinery in Bahrain, amid the US-Israeli conflict with Iran, on Monday

REUTERS
Brussels, March 9

G7 COUNTRIES HAVE not yet decided whether to release emergency oil reserves as prices surge above $119 a barrel due to the Iran war, France's finance minister said on Monday, adding that governments saw no immediate supply shortfall. "We are not there yet," Roland Lescure told reporters in Brussels after an online G7 meeting of finance ministers. "What we've agreed upon is to use any necessary tools if need be to stabilise the market, including the potential release of necessary stockpiles." Oil prices surged to more than $119 a barrel on Monday, hitting levels not seen since mid-2022, as some major producers cut supplies on fears of prolonged shipping disruption due to the US-Israeli war with Iran. Lescure said there were currently no supply problems in either Europe or the United States. Western economies coordinate their strategic oil stockpiles through the Paris-based International Energy Agency, which was formed after the 1970s oil crisis and also provides research and data to members. EIA director, Fatih Birol, pushed for a release of the reserves, said Japanese Finance Minister Satsuki Katayama, whose country holds one of the world's largest oil stockpiles. IEA member countries are net oil importers who are required to keep at least 90 days' worth of oil imports in stock. As recently as 2022, the IEA coordinated the largest collective release in its history, involving just over 180 million barrels of oil stocks in response to the market turmoil that followed Ukraine's invasion of Ukraine. IEA members hold over 1.2 billion barrels of public emergency oil stocks and a further 600 million barrels of industry stocks are held under government obligation.

Reliance buys 6 mn barrels of Russian oil for March

NIDHI VERMA
New Delhi, March 9

RELiance INDUSTRIES (RIL) has bought at least 6 million barrels of Russian oil for March delivery after supplies from West Asia were hit due to the Iran war, two industry sources said. Indian refiners have purchased millions of barrels of prompt Russian oil cargoes stuck at sea since Washington last week granted New Delhi a 30-day waiver from sanctions for cargoes loaded on vessels as of March 5. Reliance bought the cargoes of Russian flagship grade Urals oil at prices ranging from a discount of $1 to a premium of $1 to dated Brent, one of the sources said. Reliance did not respond to an emailed request for comment. India imports about 40% of its oil from West Asia through the Strait of Hormuz. India was the top buyer of Russian seaborne crude after Moscow's 2022 Ukraine invasion, but in January its refiners started to reduce purchases under pressure from Washington.

Saudi Aramco reducing output at two oilfields

SAUDI OIL GIANT Aramco has begun cutting output at two of its oilfields, two sources said on Monday, after the vital Strait of Hormuz was choked by the US-Israeli war on Iran and subsequent attacks on the waterway. It was not immediately clear at which fields and by how much production was being curtailed. Aramco, which has been rerouting some of its crude cargoes to the Red Sea port of Yanbu, declined to comment. The reductions by the world's top oil exporter underscore the severe logistical bottlenecks in the region since the US and Israel began attacking Iran on February 28 and Tehran responded by launching hundreds of missiles and drones, including at Gulf countries hosting US military facilities. Several of Saudi Arabia's neighbours have also cut production as shipping in the oil transit chokepoint, carrying roughly a fifth of global oil and LNG flows, has ground to a near halt. Kuwait Petroleum Corporation has reduced oil output and declared force majeure on shipments, while Qatar halted LNG production at its massive Ras Laffan export hub following drone strikes and also declared force majeure. Oil production from Iraq's main southern fields has dropped by about 70% as storage limits are reached, the UAE's ADNOC is reducing offshore output and Bahrain's Bapco Energies also declared force majeure.

Fitch: Iran war could raise challenges for emerging mkt economies

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, March 9

FITCH RATINGS on Monday said the Iran conflict could raise additional challenges for some emerging market sovereigns in areas like energy imports, remittances and exchange rates.

On February 28, the US and Israel launched military strikes on Iran who retaliated with attacks on US positions in the region, as well as Israel.

In a report titled 'Iran conflict raises new credit risks for emerging market sovereigns', Fitch said more sustained disruption to global energy supplies from the Gulf than envisaged under its baseline could significantly damage global investor sentiment.

"We expect this would result in a stronger US dollar and weaken the market for debt issuance, particularly for highly speculative-grade issuers. Higher energy prices could put upward pressure on inflation, affecting monetary policy decisions globally," the report said.

Fitch said oil and gas imports are the most direct channel for contagion from the conflict, given its effect on global energy prices. For larger economies, like India, net fossil fuel imports are equivalent to 3% or more of GDP.

"The Iran conflict could raise additional challenges for some emerging market sovereigns, through such channels as energy imports, remittances, fiscal subsidies, exchange rates and access to international finance," Fitch Ratings said.

In the report, Fitch said the risks to emerging market ratings should be contained if the effective closure of the Strait of Hormuz lasts less than a month and major damage to the region's oil production infrastructure is avoided.

But, a longer closure or more sustained effects could lead to a more substantial impact, it said, adding that vulnerabilities to higher import costs will be most acute in markets with already stretched financing capacity, such as Pakistan, or with significant current account deficits.

More protracted high energy prices could add to external strains facing these sovereigns, especially if other stresses emerge, for example, disruption to remittances. "Prolonged higher energy prices would also increase fiscal strains for governments that have subsidy regimes designed to shield consumers, or that launch similar measures in response to higher energy prices," Fitch said.
